VOL. 2. SALEM, OREGON, THURSDAY, JANUARY 30, 1890. NO. 285.

What is the Matter With SALEM?

HAS THE BOTTOM DROPPED OUT?

One would think to read the advertisements of some of the merchants that this is a very poor place to do business in. They are continually SELLING OUT AT COST. How do they keep up? Are they supported by charity, or are they and their advertisements frauds?

Hear the Truth!

Salem is a prosperous and growing city, and all its merchants are doing well and making money, and any right-minded man knows that when a merchant advertises to sell "at cost," that it is always at what it "costs the buyer." Men do not go into business for fun or for their health, but to make money.

The Capitol Adventure Company

never advertise to sell off at cost, yet we are constantly 20 to 30 per cent. lower than any other house in Salem. Why? Because we buy from first hands and for cash, and get our goods cheaper. Now during the months of January and February only we propose to reduce our prices on all good and show the people of Salem and the surrounding country how we can SELL GOODS and not

"Sell at Cost"

Either, but actually make money at the low prices given. Read what follows:

- Clark's Coats, Kerr's or Brook's spool cotton, white and black, per spool, 2 1/2 cts. All kinds, 100 yds, silk, per spool, 5 cts. Carpet tacks, 20 per package, 10 cts. PREFERS TO BE SHOT. [Special to the Capital Journal.] PORTLAND, Or., Jan. 30.—Pello, the Indian recently convicted of murder in the first degree in the United States circuit court, for killing Agnes Salsson on the night of May 26, near Pendleton, was sentenced by Judge Sabu this morning to be hanged on June 6th. Pello declares that he was innocent and requested to be executed at Pendleton, and also that he be shot instead of hanged.

PITY POINTS OF NEWS.

Water has been struck at a Walla Walla ranch at 112 feet.

The Luckiamute, in Polk county has risen above its banks.

A big wind storm at Centralia, Ill., blew down a new building.

At Colfax, Col., the hotel is reached by a thirty foot tunnel thro' the snow.

California vineyards and farms have suffered greatly from the storms.

The Tacoma exposition will not be held until 1891, for tightness of money.

The new Republic of Brazil has been officially recognized at Washington.

Troops are called for to settle a neighborhood quarrel in Harlem county, Ky.

A bill to regulate interstate telegraph business is reported favorably in the senate.

John Coughlin, a telegraph operator at a lonely mountain station in California died at Cisco.

The Baldwin Land Co. who have 30,000 sheep at Pineville, say they will get off without loss.

Zarate, the Mexican midget, and smallest human being alive, died at Truckee, Cal., of gastric fever.

The market quotations at Portland are practically unchanged. Eggs are down to 40 and 45 cents.

A bill has been introduced at Olympia to establish a soldier's home for the State of Washington.

NO DANGER IN OREGON

Of a Spread of the Dreaded Cattle Disease.

Dr. Wythecomb in a card says: I fear the article in yesterday's Oregonian, relative to Mr. W. S. Ladd's cattle, will create unnecessary alarm among the stock men of this state. There is but little danger of the disease spreading among other herds. It might seem as though such a wholesale slaughter of fine cattle is unnecessary; but when we consider the nature of "Bovine Tuberculosis," and how liable it is to be transferred to human beings in the form of "Phthisis Pulmonalis" (consumption) the necessity for such action becomes apparent.

A post-mortem revealed the fact that in the thirty-four head slaughtered last Monday, there was not a healthy animal in the lot. Those were the animals selected from the herd which exhibited, more or less, positive symptoms of the disease. Tuberculosis is a very insidious disease, and the form known as "Tuberculosis Mesenterica" cannot be detected with any degree of certainty in the living animals; hence the great danger in using the milk and butter from a herd known to be quite extensively affected with the disease. It is very unfortunate both for Mr. Ladd and the state, to have to lose such a finely bred herd of cattle; nevertheless, the health of the citizens should be protected, regardless of pecuniary losses.

BRINGING 'EM BACK.—This morning Geo. W. Emert, with a force of workmen began to raft some 12 or 15,000 feet of logs together that floated loose from the Capital Lumber Mills and floated to sea as far down the river as North Mill creek. As soon as they are rafted together they will be towed back to the mills and converted into lumber.

VIA SALEM TO THE SEA

Eastern Oregon, Salem and Astoria Railroad.

SALEM A CITY BOUND TO GROW!

A Political, Commercial, Social Center—Population Rapidly Increasing—The Center to Reach.

Of course neither Salem or Albany want to have either get any advantage. That is natural. Why not unite and agree on a Y? Let it be agreed that the road, when built, shall branch, one arm running into Salem, the other into Albany, thus putting each city on an equal footing, so far as a railroad outlet to Oregon's seaport is concerned.

In union is strength. Astoria means business. Our city would be glad to see union prevail and have Salem and Albany both unite upon some such proposition.—Astorian.

The above is just what the JOURNAL has advocated. While Salem is getting ahead fast, Salem is not trying to get an unfair advantage on any other town. The money men of this city realize that a railroad, to have business, must run somewhere. It cannot do a very profitable business by starting in a mud-hole and ending in a melon-patch. A railroad franchise without some cities of importance on its line of route is not desirable as an investment. We believe such cities as Salem and Albany have a common interest in a good trunk line to the sea. It is a matter of some importance to any railroad to tap a city that is certain to have a population of 15,000 people before the end of two years; a city that is the capital of a growing state, and a county seat that has a live set of business men, who are putting out every effort to bring hundreds of people to this city and country every week; a great center of trade and the great east producing city in the central valley; a city manned by as intelligent a crew of pushing citizens as are to be found on the coast.

There are a good many towns promising immense bonuses and subscriptions to secure railroads that are never paid. That is not the kind of town Salem is. That is not the style of our leading businessmen and capitalists. While they realize that they have a city with a splendid future before it, and a city with an assured rapid growth, they are not easily led into promises which they cannot afterwards promptly and fully meet to the last cent. So far as they go they prefer solvency to wild-cat booms and humbugs.

It must never be forgotten that a road from Eastern Oregon to Astoria via Salem is the most direct, easily built and desirable line to the sea. It would be a road sapping the richest lumber regions of the Cascades and connecting with the capital of the state. It would be the most profitable road and no through line to the sea that would go by Salem would amount to much. Let so much be understood. Albany has already a sea-port connection and Astoria people must realize that their strong point of being a great sea-port town will not be made more important by a division of sea-going traffic with Yaquina. The natural line of connection with Eastern Oregon is from Astoria to Salem. That would be a profitable road as soon as built, and become a basis for extensions eastward that would grow more tempting to capitalists with each additional mile that was finished. Astoria has a greater interest in a connection with Salem, in the heart of the richest agricultural region of America, than it has with Portland, because Astoria by all indications will become a greater port of entry than Portland. The latter city, with its great capital and rail road interests has never had any love for a possible rival to its shipping and commerce. The geographical and business situation of this state is such that a road must ultimately be built from Eastern Oregon to Astoria via Salem.

BRINGING 'EM BACK.—This morning Geo. W. Emert, with a force of workmen began to raft some 12 or 15,000 feet of logs together that floated loose from the Capital Lumber Mills and floated to sea as far down the river as North Mill creek. As soon as they are rafted together they will be towed back to the mills and converted into lumber.

ADDITIONAL CITY NEWS

THE MOTOR WHIST CLUB.—This club met at the residence of Mr. Wm. England last evening, it being the birthday of Mrs. England and Mrs. I. N. Gilbert, both members of the club. Each of these lady members were the recipients of several beautiful bouquets of cut flowers, presented by members of the club. A most enjoyable evening was had, in the pleasant game of whist, and it closed with a bountiful lunch and a half hour of pleasant social converse. These occasions tend to brighten the gloomy days of winter, and are greatly enjoyed by all the members of the club. The attendance was very good last evening, only three members being absent.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION.—The following articles of incorporation were filed to-day with the secretary of state: The Independence Water and Electric Light company; capital stock, $40,000; H. Herschberg, A. J. Goodman, H. H. Jasper, A. Nelson and J. Dorssef, as incorporators. The Security Building and Loan association, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Hans Mattson, A. C. Hagau, S. A. March, C. A. Smith, M. Lunnou and other as incorporators; capital stock, $10,000,000. Also the Durance Lumbering and Manufacturing company, of Hudson, filed supplementary articles increasing the capital stock from $40,000 to $30,000.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. John Killingsworth, of Dayton, Washington, died very suddenly last Saturday evening. Mr. Killingsworth is well and favorably known throughout Oregon and Washington, having come to Oregon in 1853, and was for 15 years engaged in merchandising in Eugene City. He leaves a wife, two daughters and one son, Mrs. D. C. Felch, of Colfax, Washington, Mrs. R. M. Robertson, of Eugene City, and Mr. W. M. Killingsworth of Portland.

LOGS SAFE ENOUGH.—A JOURNAL reporter was shown a telegram from Sam Friendly, who had 4,000, 60 feet of logs break loose in the Makenzie, yesterday, and it stated that the logs were all safe above Corvallis. This will be glad news to Mr. Friendly's friends, as he suffered a great loss in 1886 by the high water.

FINE SINGERS.—If you would hear some good singing don't fail to attend the W. C. T. U. parlors this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Pailey, evangelistic singers, arrived from Portland this morning and will conduct the exercises. They are highly spoken of throughout the country. All invited to be present and enjoy the exercises.
